Whose responsibility is it to teach children to respect the teacher? This lies on the shoulders of the parents and predominantly parents only. Irrespective of how respectable the teacher is, the feeling of respect has to be developed in the hearts and minds of children. How the teacher relates to the student matters very little; but how the student relates to the teacher will affect him in positive or negative ways. To make them understand this we need to communicate long enough.

The easiest way to develop this feeling in our children is by showing respect to their teachers and to our teachers in their presence. They will follow what they see.

A child is chiselled into a glorious statue by two sculptors, parents and teachers. Each would agree that the statue would not have been made successfully if they had worked alone. For behind the parent stood the school and behind the teacher the home!
